

CEF 533 Teaching Writing Across the Disciplines

Formerly A Writer's Notebook: Supporting Your Own Writing

This course is designed for practicing K-12 teachers who want to improve student writing by sharing and examining classroom practice and uses of writing. The coursework is divided into two areas: demonstration lessons and activities; oral and written response to readings. Topics of study will include reader response applications, interdisciplinary reading/writing connections, the "I Search" paper, writing to learn and portfolio assessment.
